This volume of work came out of visiting philatelic events around the country and seeing other collectors with their own notebooks listing items required for their own collections, sitting at the dealers' tables using them to check for missing items from their collections.

Seeing how useful these notebooks were to their owners we wanted a book which could be a living document with a way of checking what was already in our collections and what was required. We therefore went through all the well-known books on the subject and came up with a prototype which then evolved over a period of 5 years into what you see here.

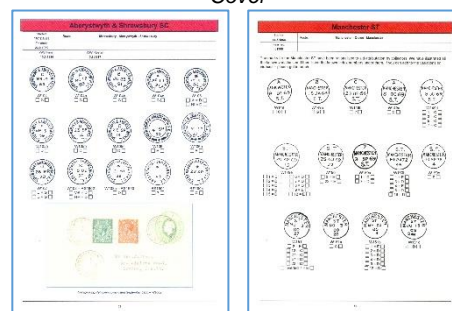

It has been used on the TPO & Seapost Society stand when members and non-members come along with queries on numerous occasions and some of them have said how much they thought it would be of use to others especially if it showed scarcity and estimated valuations. What you see here is the very latest and up to date version which includes much of the feedback received from collectors who have seen the prototype.

The layout of this book is a similar format as the authors previous collaboration and successful book – "Paquebot Cancellations of the World – And More" written in 2010 and collating the whole subject into one book bringing as much information as available at the time. This book is attempting the same input; only this time instead of all things seaworthy the authors are on dry land and in the world of railways.

The aim of the book is not to write the history of each line and TPO route, as this has already been done, but to give an accurate as possible listing of all known cancellations and their various indexes together with as many illustrations as possible and with luck this is what we will have achieved.
